

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

[0020] In fuel cell feed processing systems, reformat gas comprising primarily hydrogen and water vapor is produced from a mixture of gaseous fuel and air using a carbon foam heat exchanger and carbon fiber composite molecular sieve scrubber instead of conventional desulfurizers, shift reactors, and partial oxidation reactors.